Cranstonian '77

My soul, reach out for I have been filled with strength.

My mind, seek solution
for I have gained knowledge.

My inner self, release feeling and laugh - or cry for I have uncovered emotion.

My hand, be creative for I have expressed talent
My personality, shine with a smile
for I have known true friendship.

Yes, my being show courage
for I have widened my horizons.
I have loved, shared, learned . . . experienced.

I have grown.

THE 1977
CRANSTONIAN HONORS

MISS DOROTHY W. WILBUR

DEDICATION
A teacher encouraging, demanding,
A friend
advising, understanding,
Light in darkness,
Warmth in cold,
Personal supporter of young and old,
A special word and a friendly smile,
Unmeasured attainment to fulfill her,
Our very own, Miss Dorothy Wilbur.

The Cranstonian of 1977 is dedicated with honor to Miss Dorothy Wilbur. During her past 37 years with us, Miss Wilbur has repeatedly and unceasingly shown her love and respect for youth. She has proven her understanding, by being able to encounter with guidance and encouragement, problems faced by young adults. She has upgraded the morale of many students, giving them confidence in themselves. Miss Wilbur has proven to youth that one does learn by mistakes, and that these mistakes are nothing to be ashamed of. Many people have benefited by "Dorothy's" efforts through the course, "Exploring Childhood". One of Dorothy's most recent youth service projects, this course offers high school students the opportunity to help youngsters of kindergarten age, while also gaining a sense of accomplishment in themselves. This program, receiving commendation from the State Department of Education, has been quite successful and a credit to Dorothy Wilbur.

In the past, Miss Wilbur has served as advisor to a Student Nurse Aid Program which she founded in the 1960's. She was the fundamental factor in opening the Betty Crocker Contest to students of East. Many of her accomplishments, among them gathering necessities for the less fortunate, have passed unannounced, because Miss Wilbur has done them for love's sake, not for praise.

Miss Wilbur now serves on the principal's council, fulfilling her obligations to perfection. She always radiates warmth to those with her, cheering them with her good sense of humor.

Throughout her life Dorothy Wilbur has been the backbone of much honor credited with Cranston High School East. She has the qualities of "teacher" and "friend", dedicating herself to us, the reason we dedicate ourselves to her.

In today's world we are confronted with many problems. As we mature we begin to take on new responsibilities, thus requiring us to make important decisions affecting our future. We often have to make a choice between such things as good or bad, self or society, and honesty or dishonesty. Our decisions are based upon our past experiences, many friendships, and most importantly, our adult acquaintances. Each person we meet in life has some influence on how we shape our own perspectives. Of all these people, our teachers and administrators show us most effectively what we, as adults are to expect of the world.

Throughout our years here at Cranston East, we have undergone preparation in the shaping of our future. Each instructor has played his part in helping us to attain our goals. Whether it be Mr. Chagnon demonstrating to a future mechanic a method of "troubleshooting" on the road to success, Ms. Babcock explaining the Laws of Physics to potential Einsteins, Mrs. Hatch encouraging involvement in student activities, or any other teacher determined to strengthen our confidence and give us a firm step ahead of the ordinary, we have shared in their knowledge and grown in their wisdom.

In return the faculty have been influenced by the student body. Certain teaching habits have been formed as the result of encounters with a particular type of student. Response to youth has been in demand as teachers and counselors have become personal friends of their students, sharing in happiness and sorrow, success and defeat. Often a teenager has sought from a teacher advice as a friend, encouragement as a supporter, and understanding as a believer. How many students would become apathetic to education if they did not have a teacher, a friend who cared for them? How often would a teacher become discouraged without the interest of his students? As a teacher encourages students, so students encourage a teacher. A teacher's reward is seeing positive results of his efforts in the education of a student. The success of a student is the success of a teacher, for it is through the knowledge and instruction of the teacher that the student has attained his goal.

And so, the Cranstonian reserves a special segment of the yearbook to give recognition to our faculty to whom we owe so much. They have helped to make us the people we are today. They have established in us, a firm foundation on which we will be able to build our lives and careers. Because of our education, our enrichment, our total learning experiences we will be able to appreciate life more fully, advance through knowledge more comprehensively, and look back at the faculty of Cranston High School East more appreciably. We will be fully qualified to say, "Through the concerned efforts of our educators, we have broadened our horizons."

b. To produce penicillin, precise measurements are needed, as shown by Steve Lisi as he diligently measures the weight of a chemical, NaS04.

The Advanced Science Program here a C.H.S.E., revised and directed by James P. Fla herty, is one of the more distinguished but, les publicized courses offered by our school curricu lum. It has been described by Mr. Flaherty as program of study which "allows the individual stu dent, who has already completed Biology an Chemistry, to continue to advance his scientifi knowledge by performing independent researc into a scientific topic of his own choosing." Be cause the student is allowed free choice of hi research topic, the material researched provide the best educational value for the student, breed ing enthusiasm and sufficient industry to guaran tee superior results, while also providing valuabl experience relating to a possible future career fo the individual.

Not only does the Advanced Science Progra provide a valuable service to the individual stu dent, but also it provides great distinction to Cran ston High School East as an educational institu tion. The majority of projects developed by stu dents of the Advanced Science class are submitte to scholarship contests and competitions. In th past four years, almost every project complete has won at least one award, advancing from th state, to the regional and sometimes to the nation al level. Cranston High East students have bee presented with over forty State Science Fa Awards, three awards in the New England Scienc Symposium, and three honors of recognition in th National Westinghouse Science Talent Search.

Although successful, Advanced Science could b a much more beneficial program to the school im age, as well as the student interest, if adequat funds were provided for the course's functionin Operating on approximately $100.00 in unbudge ed funds, the program could benefit tremendousl from an additional $400.00 per annum. This in creased funding would accomodate the variety o student interest encountered by the progra Presently, aid to balance student need is provide in part by the support of research and develop ment laboratories of industries within the commu nity, sharing their "know how" and physical labo ratory equipment with students of the Scienc Program. Local universities also provide an outle for essential library and laboratory facilities.

Through the continued assistance of Mr. Fla herty, the vivid interest of the student, and th desired financial support, the Advanced Scienc Program will continue to function successfully bringing honor and recognition to Cranston Hig School East and the proud individuals represen ing us.

"CHILD DEVELOPMENT"-AN OPPORTUNITY FOR SELF-DEVELOPMENT

Barbara Campbell chats with Angela Smith. Cranston East students aid Mrs. Rogers by giving individual attention to students, who might not normally receive it.

"Exploring Childhood", a course offered at Cranston High School East, studies children; their differences from and feelings for older people, their individual beliefs, abilities, and attitudes towards others, their place in society, and ultimately, how these factors affect a child's own maturation. The course is designed to acquaint high school students with young children and with the various situations encountered when being with them. A student learns how to teach, help, and most importantly understand a child, sensing his feelings, needs, and desires.

In the course of the school year, three main topics of childhood are studied; first encountered is a section "Working with Children", proceeded by "Seeing Development", and then united by the last main segment concerning "Family and Society". These sections study progressively, ways in which to work with children, to analyze the nature of a child, and to consider how a particular environment shapes the development of the child. There are specific units in a section on such topics as prenatal care, the handicapped child, and emotions of a child. All these topics are essentially studied to gain an understanding of the feelings of a child and ways in which to best relate to him in a certain situation.

The course was started initially through a $3,000 grant awarded to institute the program. The funds were used for the necessary equipment to satisfactorily administer the course; books, films, and overhead projector, handicraft equipment, and provision for bus transportation to and from the schools served. This grant, obtained by the efforts of Miss Dorothy Wilbur, program instructor, has been supplemented with additional funds each year of its existance.

"Exploring Childhood" has been in operation for three years, formed and supervised by Miss Wilbur. Due to the great success of this program, it has expanded from two classes to a five class program, filling a complete schedule. Yet, this capacity is not enough to meet the requests of all intersted students, and thus the program is open to seniors only.

Each class, composed of approximately twenty students, studies in school three days a week and on the fourth day, goes to nearby Kindergarten schools to put into practice, the ideas examined in the Cranston East course. In this manner, the student is able to help a child as well as himself. His work is supported and encouraged by the kindergarten teachers generously allowing the involvement of the high school student in their class structure. Also, the schools participating: Eden Park, Norwood Avenue, Gladstone, Dutemple, Stadium, Daniel D. Waterman, and Rhodes, are able to experience the benefits of a worthwhile, community- supported program.

Thus, "Exploring Childhood" has raised the image of Cranston High School East and the students and faculty composing it. We have made ourselves known in the community, providing help, knowledge, and love to many children, helping them to participate in a different type of classroom experience and through the children's emotions, help high school students undersand the love, the needs, and the development of children.

BABBITT: "THEATRE IS THE MOST COMPREHENSIVE OF ALL ARTS"

One of the most instructive parts of theater is a critical evaluation of an actor's work, and here Mr. Babbit gives constructive criticism to one of his students.

"Theater is the most comprehensive of all arts." These are the words of Donald Babbitt head of the theater departme at Cranston High East. Theater as a course was first offered to students eight years ago under the direction of Mr. Edwa Rondeau. When the program began, the theater curriculum consisted of one introductory theater course. When M Babbit took over it consisted of one Introductory course, one Advanced course and one two period per week course Technical Theater. In Don Babbitt's 6 years as head of the theater department, it has branched out and enveloped mo students with each passing year. There are now three sections of Introduction to Theater with 70 students participatin one course of Advanced Theater Acting/Directing with 15 students, as well as one class of Special Theater Topi containing ten students and one Advanced Theater Class of ten students. In total, there are six theater courses ar roughly 105 participating students. Mr. Babbitt smiles wryly, "The department has gone from one class in theater to t much for one teacher to handle." At times there has been more than one teacher to handle the masses. On occasion M Babbitt has brought in specialists on voice, diction, dance and movement.

Mr. Babbitt has a few definite changes in mind for next year. The Advanced Theater Class will meet two times p week for one hour and one time per week for a double period. This year the class met two double periods per week ar there wasn't enough continuity. He would also like to separate the Advanced Technical Theater students from t Advanced Acting/Directing students. He feels that the two aspects of theater are too different to be done justice togeth in an advanced course. Mr. Babbitt would also like to be more selective. Just as A Cappella Choir has auditions, he thin that something like a short dramatic reading might not be a bad idea. For one thing it might ward off the students wh take theater as an easy course. Mr. Babbitt has three main objectives for his Introduction to Theater students: 1) T use the experience of the theater to increase the individual's self-image by getting the student to try new things. 2) T develop a potential theater audience; to help the student grow to appreciate the theater as an observer. 3) To expose t student to all the ways one may become involved in theater.

Introduction to Theater is used as a prerequisite for Advanced Theater, because it is very difficult to do anythi without background. There, the third objective for the introductory course carries over and becomes the main objecti for the advanced course - specialization. Some of these students do go on to specialize in some aspects of the theat acting, designing, and teaching. Relative to the percentage of kids who take theater, not many succeed in a theater caree

"But," said, Mr. Babbitt, "I am not trying to turn out actors. I would not urge anyone to go into the field; it is ve difficult to break into. The main objective of the Theater Department is to establish theater in the student's eyes as valuable learning experience." It takes in music, art, and dance along with acting. "Theater is the most comprehensive all arts."

a. Donald Babbit feels that the ability to perform as a group is more important than one's ability to perform alone. Richard Brandt, Stuart Goldstein, Lori Debuque, Pamela Bio, and Darlene Pierce, by pantomiming the act of carrying a coffin, learn to act as a single unit.

b. Mr. Babbitt, Head of the Theater Department, spends much of his time working with students and trying to improve their acting skills.

c. Pantomiming is perhaps the most difficult task an actor must perform, and Mr. Babbitt believes his students should be well trained in this art. Here Dennis Gerskoff, Catherine Murphy, and Kathleen Cahill pantomime carrying a casket.

THYRSUS CLUB

The Thyrsus Club is made up of students who express an interest in the various aspects of the school's extensive theater program. Monthly meetings featuring interesting and informative programs, major theatrical presentations which are open to the public, and various types of social activities, are an integral part of the club's annual calendar of events.

Besides acting on stage, students are given the opportunity to gain experience in various areas of production such as scenic construction and design, lighting and sound, costumes and make-up, publicity and ticket sales, and directing.

THYRSUS CLUB OFFICERS

THUNDERBOLT EXECUTIVE STAFF

THUNDERBOLT is one of the best organized extra curricular activities at Cranston East. It consists of eight staffs including Executive, News, Sports, Features, Editorial, Photography, Circulation, Business, and Advertising.

It is a self-supporting organization and through advertising income, circulation income, and income from one fund raising project it is published six times during the school year.

In addition to its own operation, participates in newspaper competitions and seminars held at Columbia University, Boston University, St. Bonaventure University, and American International College.

In this way, THUNDERBOLT is very active. Trips to some of these various seminars are made. Furthermore, staff members enjoy such activities as a softball game against one of East's other extra curricular activities, an annual banquet for present members, and also an alumni banquet.

BOOTERS SUFFER THROUGH A SOCCER

Captain Kevin Smith, voted by his teammates as East's "Most Valuable Player", led the team in scoring.

DISAPPOINTING SEASON

The soccer team has experienced one of its dreariest seasons ever. For the first time in the history of Cranston East soccer, the team has finished in last place. Coach Lyle Perra admits that the team had a very disappointing season, and what made this season even more surprising was that the team had a tremendous amount of potential.

The Bolt Booters began the season very promisingly with a 9-2 victory over Warren and a 2-2 tie with Tolman. But once the regular season began, the booters began to slide and could not apply the brakes. Their first game was against a fine East Providence team and the Bolts suffered a 4-1 defeat. After this loss the Bolts could not get back on the winning track. Although the Bolts ended the season with a 2-13-1 regular season record, Coach Perra maintains that the team was far better than this record indicates. Many Bolt losses were by one goal and this dilemma was never more evident than in the LaSalle game when the Bolts, leading throughout the entire game, gave up two quick goals in the final minute and lost 4-3.

However dismal the season was, it still had its bright moments. The Booters beat Cranston West 6-0 and retained the city championship. Coach Perra had special praise for the three captains, Kevin Smith, Fred Uttley, and Glen Simpson, for throughout the season they gave 100% and kept up the spirit and the morale of the players.

The future appears to be much more promising for the booters. Many experienced players; such as Paul Spremulli, Dave DiMaio, and Reinaldo Vilardo; will be returning to the Bolts next year. Coach Perra expects to be in contention for a playoff berth.

a. Paul Spremulli makes a sensational save to keep the Bolts in a tight game against Barrington. b. Dave DiMaio, although wedged in by two Barrington forwards, clears the ball away from the front of the goal. c. Captain Glen Simpson played his midfield position well while proving to be a " Mister Clutch" of sorts. Glen fired two game winning goals while hitting another that kept the Bolt from sustaining a loss.

BOLT'S SUCCESSFUL IN FIRST SEASON

TENNIS

Captain Valerie LaPolla, an All State First Team selection, was the team leader all season and one of the finest girl players in the state.

The Girls' Varsity Tennis Team, in its first year of league play, has proven itself to be a tough competitor for any racket team in the state. Placed in the State Central Division, the team was matched against the strongest contenders for the state title, among them, Barrington High and Wheeler School. Kept "on the ball" by net star and team captain, Valerie La Polla, the East Team finished in third place. Miss Lorenzo, the coach, feels that Valerie's presence was a definite asset to the team's victories. Individually, Valerie won eight of her ten matches, losing only to other top women's players in the state. Her experience in tournament play and her constant determination for victory improved the confidence of other team members in themselves and in their talents. Valerie's abilities were recognized when she became the unanimous coaches' choice for the All-State Tennis title.

Coach Lorenzo believes that participation in team tennis is a great experience for the girls. Tennis is an individual, as well as a team sport, one match being just as important as another. Whether she plays first singles or third doubles, a girl's victory is of the same importance to the victory of the team, and her defeat can hurt just as much as that of another team member.

Miss Lorenzo has been happy with the performance of her team. Although handicapped with injuries, the team remained strong to opposition. Miss Lorenzo has seen much improvement in the games of her players, especially in those of her "Doubles Demons", sophomores Ellen Curran and Debbie Kalian. The team learned the most valuable lesson, to be a team; to play one's best for the benefit of the team and to give one's hardest efforts.

The future? Miss Lorenzo is very optimistic, and rightly so. This year the team had depth, next year they'll also have experience. Eleven of the thirteen members will be returning. Thus, concentration will be centered more closely on techniques for winning a match, instead of techniques to merely become adjusted to tournament play. Anticipation as some of the new team leaders are juniors Sylinda Kenyon, Mindy Luber, and Sue Navarette, and sophomore Mary D'Ambra. Backed by these solid players the team should be much improved next season.

c. Valerie, who was R.I. Closed Junior Champ this year, shows the kind of concentration necessary to be a fine player. She led the team with an 8-2 mark this year.

d. Sue Arnold, called a tiger at the net by Coach Lorenzo, also played number 2 doubles this year, but will move to the top spot in that category next season.

e. Sylinda Kenyon, although missing several matches this season, was still the number two singles player and will probably lead the team in singles next year.

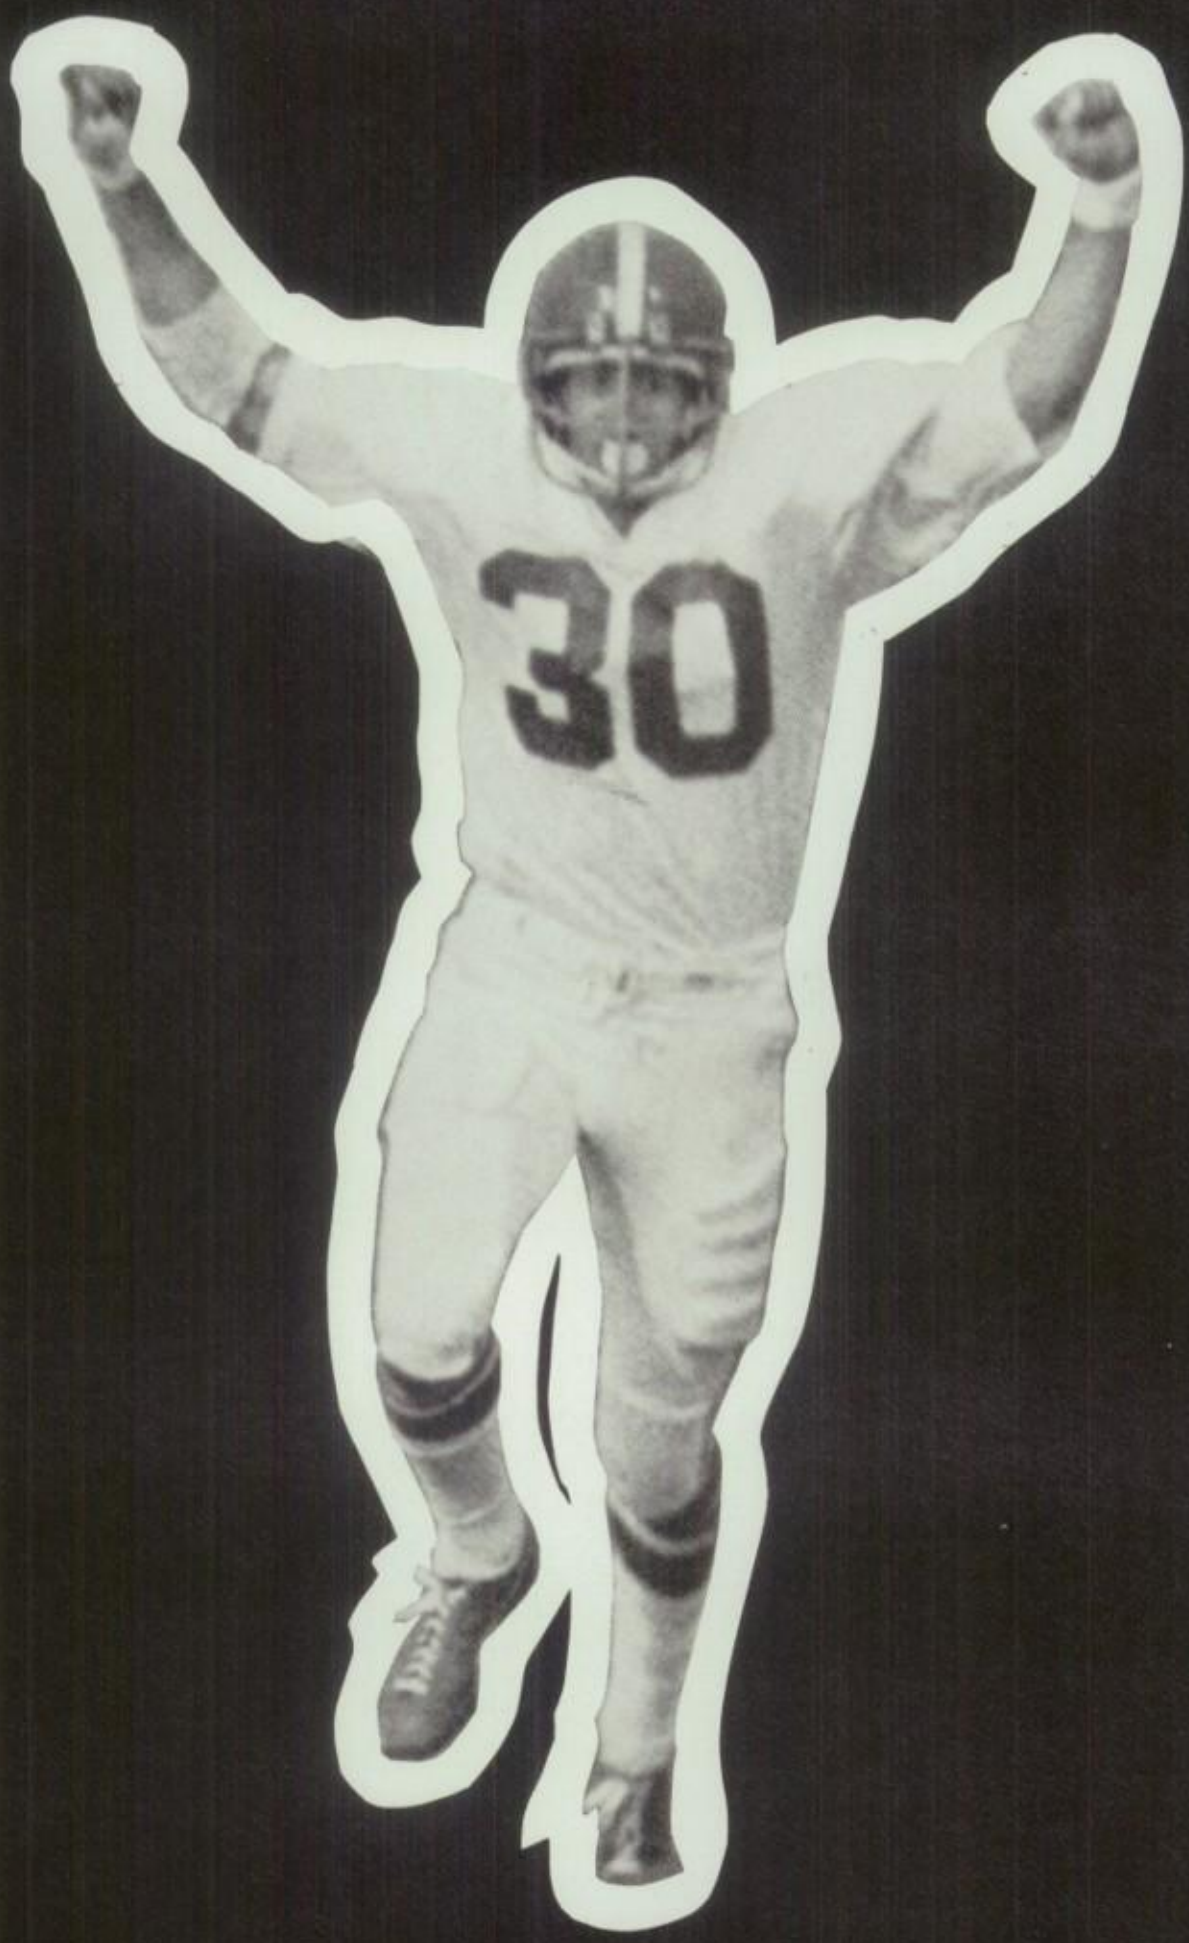
A FAMILIAR NAME BACK



Steve Reale was East's leading ground gainer and most consistent runner this year. The senior halfback sparked a struggling offense all season leading the team in scoring.

AT THE HELM

a. Jim Halpin, the Bolt's starting right guard, discovers the sour side of football in the Cumberland game. Shown here being tended by Dr. Richard Peters and student trainer Arnold Geller, Jim had torn cartilages and was lost for the season.

b. Tom Parfenchuck, East's superb place kicker, drills a point after against Cumberland's Clippers as Paul Cotter holds.

c. Co-Captain Mike Mari, who served as the Bolt's fullback the last half of the season, sweeps around the left side behind the blocking of Steve Reale in the Cumberland game. Mike, the second leading ground gainer in the squad, scored 5 touchdowns during the season.

Once again the football team experienced a change in leadership as Ted Stebbins replaced Dick Scoggins as head coach, thereby continuing a family tradition. With Stebbins came a new system, and the players, who were not accustomed to his particular type of play, had to spend valuable time adapting to their new coach's approach. By the season's end, both players and coach had become accustomed to each other, but unfortunately it was much too late. The Bolts finished the season with a disappointing 3-6 record.

The season, however, was not without its bright moments.There were several Bolt players singled out for post-season honors. Steve Reale, the team's leading scorer and ground gainer, was selected for the Class "A" Large First Team at halfback. Mike Mari was selected on the second team Class "A" Large as a defensive back, while Ed Desautel landed second team honors as both an offensive and defensive guard. Donald Arpin and Vin Abbondanza were also second string choices, both at tackle; Don on offense and Vin on defense. In addition, as coach and players learned more of each other, they improved steadily. This improvement was never more evident than on the last game of the season, the Thanksgiving Day game against Cranston West. The Bolts exhibited more spirit, skill, and desire than they had throughout the entire season and rolled over West for a 31-8 victory. As Coach Stebbins put it, "Everything came together on Thanksgiving".

A major factor, other than the difficulties of breaking in a new coach, is that the Bolts lacked experience and depth. Last year, under Coach Scoggins, the junior varsity team was discontinued. Because of this, Coach Stebbins was faced with the task of coaching juniors who had no experience playing high school football.

But, just as the season ended on a bright note, so does the future seem bright to the Bolts. Coach Stebbins began a new junior varsity program this year and this will bring more experience to next year's team. And, although 18 seniors are being lost through graduation, many experienced juniors are ready to take their places. Coach Stebbins feels that Cranston East will once again enjoy a winning football

FIELD HOCKEY

BOLTS SUFFER ANOTHER SCORELESS SEASON

Right wing sophomore Hera Votolato is one of a host of 10th graders that are East's hope for the future.

The Girls' Field Hockey Team, although suffering through another scoreless season, has shown definite improvement within the course of the year according to Coach Marge Lebeau. "The overall record may not show any improvement," claims Coach Lebeau, "but when examined with last year's goals against record, the tally shows East's improving ability to hold their opponent's goal accumulation". Much of this credit is due to goalie, Carol Smith, and defensive captain, Janice Abramson. Carol, as estimated by Miss Lebeau, is one of the finest goalies the team has had in many years and Janice has worked hard with her defensive line, showing them some tricks of the trade. Most importantly, she has gotten the girls to care about the whole concept of field hockey.

Each year the team has faced the same difficulty; starting the season with many inexperienced players who are just learning the basics of field hockey while serving their apprenticeship in action in a regular league game. This is where the presence of offensive team captain, and first three year veteran, Meredith Curren, has been an extremely important asset. Merry's experience and willingness to help others has greatly improved the skill of many of the girls, especially the first year players. Her presence and her confidence in the team have been tremendous bonuses to the team's improvement.

The outlook for the future of the Girls' Field Hockey Team holds promise of victory. For the first time, most of the team's key players will be returning, their forward line being composed of mostly sophomores, and their back line supported by juniors. Also, assuming that new members will join the team, East should be able to provide good competition for many of its opponents and make its presence known in Field Hockey Association rankings.

CROSS COUNTRY

INEXPERIENCED

Bernie McLaughlin was, indeed, a bright light in an otherwise dark season. He took seven first place finishes and garnered two First Team All State selections in addition to being chosen First Team All Class "A".

HARRIERS FINISH 2-5

From the outset of the season, Coach Ken Leshner had little reason to be optimistic. With only one experienced runner returning, and the remainder of the team consisting of juniors and sophomores, Coach Leshner viewed the season as a rebuilding year. The inexperience of the team resulted in a poor season and a dismal 2-5 record. In spite of all this, Coach Leshner states that through work and courage, the runners did a respectable job in every race they ran, and he has special praise for the sole female competitor, Sue Flint, whom he says gave a good account of herself in every race.

Because the junior high schools lack a cross country program, most of the runners arrive at Cranston East with no experience at all. Their first two years are usually spent developing self-discipline and learning how to pace themselves to conserve their energy in lengthy races. This invaluable knowledge must be developed by each runner, and comes only with experience.

In an otherwise dismal season, Bernie McLaughlin was the bright spot for the East Harriers. Bernie shined in every race he ran, and his greater achievements of the season were: A first place finish in the Coaches Invitational Varsity Race, finishing third in the class "A" Championship Race, and finishing sixth in the Columbus Day Road Race. Bernie's season was climaxed with his selections to All Class "A" First team and All State First Team.

Coach Leshner is more optimistic about next year. With junior Tom Sills anchoring a more experienced team, a more successful season is in sight.

BASKETBALL

LACK OF HEIGHT, INEXPERIENCE PROVE KEY FACTORS IN DISMAL SEASON

Senior Captain Tom Zito, the only returning starter and East's leading scorer, was the sparkplug of the team. Despite special treatment all year by opposing defenders, he was voted to the All-Met I, third team.

"It was a poor season, a very poor season." With these words Coach Marshal Gerstenblatt very accurately described the performance of this year's basketball team. The Bolt's league record was a dismal 1-13, its only win a victory over a fine LaSalle team, and a 4-16 overall. Coach Gerstenblatt cites inexperience as the factor most detrimental to the team. Of the five starting players, Tom Zito was the only starter to return from last year's team. As a result, the first half of the season was spent trying to find just the combination of players to start for the Bolt team. The only result was that for the first time in four years, the Bolts failed to make the playoffs.

Although it was a cloudy season, there were some bright moments. East defeated city rival Cranston West, thereby winning the city championship. The marvelous play of senior captain Tommy Zito proved to be some consolation to an otherwise diastrous season. Coach Gerstenblatt called Tommy's play the only major highlight of the entire season.

The future appears to be promising. Sophomore Dave Stenhouse and Junior John Picerno, both of whom saw a lot of playing time this year, will spearhead the Bolt attack next year. Coach Gerstenblatt also feels that this year's junior varsity team is ahead of last year's J.V. team in experience. These factors lead "G" to view the future very optimistically. He hopes for an even 7-7 record next year and a fourth place finish in the divisional standings. Let's hope so. We've kind of gotten use to East in the playoffs and we like it that way.

WRESTLING

IMPROVEMENT IS THE KEY TO A FINE SEASON

This year's wrestling team experienced a fine season turning last year's 4-12 record into a respectable 9-8 record. Coach Dave Andrew sees two key factors responsible for the turnabout that brought the Bolts fourth place finishes in the Metropolitan Division and the state competition. The first, is that the competition in the league was not as strong this year and the other, is that the grapplers improved greatly as a team. "Bear" feels that of all the teams he has ever coached, none have improved more than this year's team. Evidence of this fact was the confrontations with Cumberland and Warwick Vets. In their first meets the Bolts were handed defeats by both teams, but in their rematches the wrestlers walked away with victories over both clubs.

This year was not without great individual achievement either. The Bolts found their best performances in three wrestlers, Co-captain Joe Piacitelli, who finished the season with a 19-2 record, Co-captain Tom Kemble, whose record was 17-2-1, and Brian Rafferty, who finished at 16-3. These players also competed in the individual state meet where wrestlers compete in their weight classes for individual honors. In this competition Joe finished second, Tom Kemble placed third, Brian Rafferty also finished second, and capt. Mickey McCann, ineligible most of the season, finished fourth.

Coach Andrew feels that next year's team should be even more improved even though the Bolts will lose Joe Piacitelli, Tom Kemble, and Mickey McCann through graduation. East will have returning juniors Brian Rafferty, Vinnie Mattera, David Brailsford, and sophomores Louis Piacitelli and Danny Perry. Coach Andrew has such confidence in next year's squad that he predicts a second place finish in the Metropolitan Division. Let's hope this prediction comes true.

GIRL'S BASKETBALL

NEVER-GIVE-UP ATTITUDE LEADS BOLTS TO BEST SEASON EVER

Senior MaryLee Ricci was the Bolts big player whose height and experience helped bring the Bolts to a playoff birth.

While most of the student body was busy watching the boys' basketball team and their dreary season, the girls were enjoying their finest season ever. The girls turned last year's record into a respectable 8-4 record and second place finish; a play-off berth for the state championship. Coach Giangrande said that the difference between this year's team and the teams of the past were a greater desire to win, much harder work by individual players and the tremendous pride the team had in itself. The coach also feels that the quality of players on this year's team was much greater than past teams.

Perhaps the greatest factor responsible for their fine season was the girls' never-give-up attitude. On five separate occasions the hoopsters trailed at the end of the first half, and then rebounded in the second half to hook in the victory. A good example of this came on the last day of the season, when the Bolts, needing this victory to make the play-offs, overcame a 14 point deficit and beat a fine Pilgrim team 39-34. The girls also beat city rival Cranston West twice, establishing their supremacy in Cranston.

Coach Giangrande singled out starters Mary Lee Ricci, Teresa Durand, Mel Curran, Kris Norberg, and Diane Antoscia for their fine play all year long. Of these players, only Mary Lee Ricci and Mel Curran will be graduating, leaving the team with a nucleus of experienced players for next year's squad. Margaret Degidio, a sophomore, is expected to move to a starting position next year and contribute greatly to the team's success. Because of the loss of both Ricci and Curran, Coach Giangrande is hesitant to predict how his team will fare next season, but if they show the same spirit and drive as they have shown this year, there is no doubt they will enjoy another successful season.

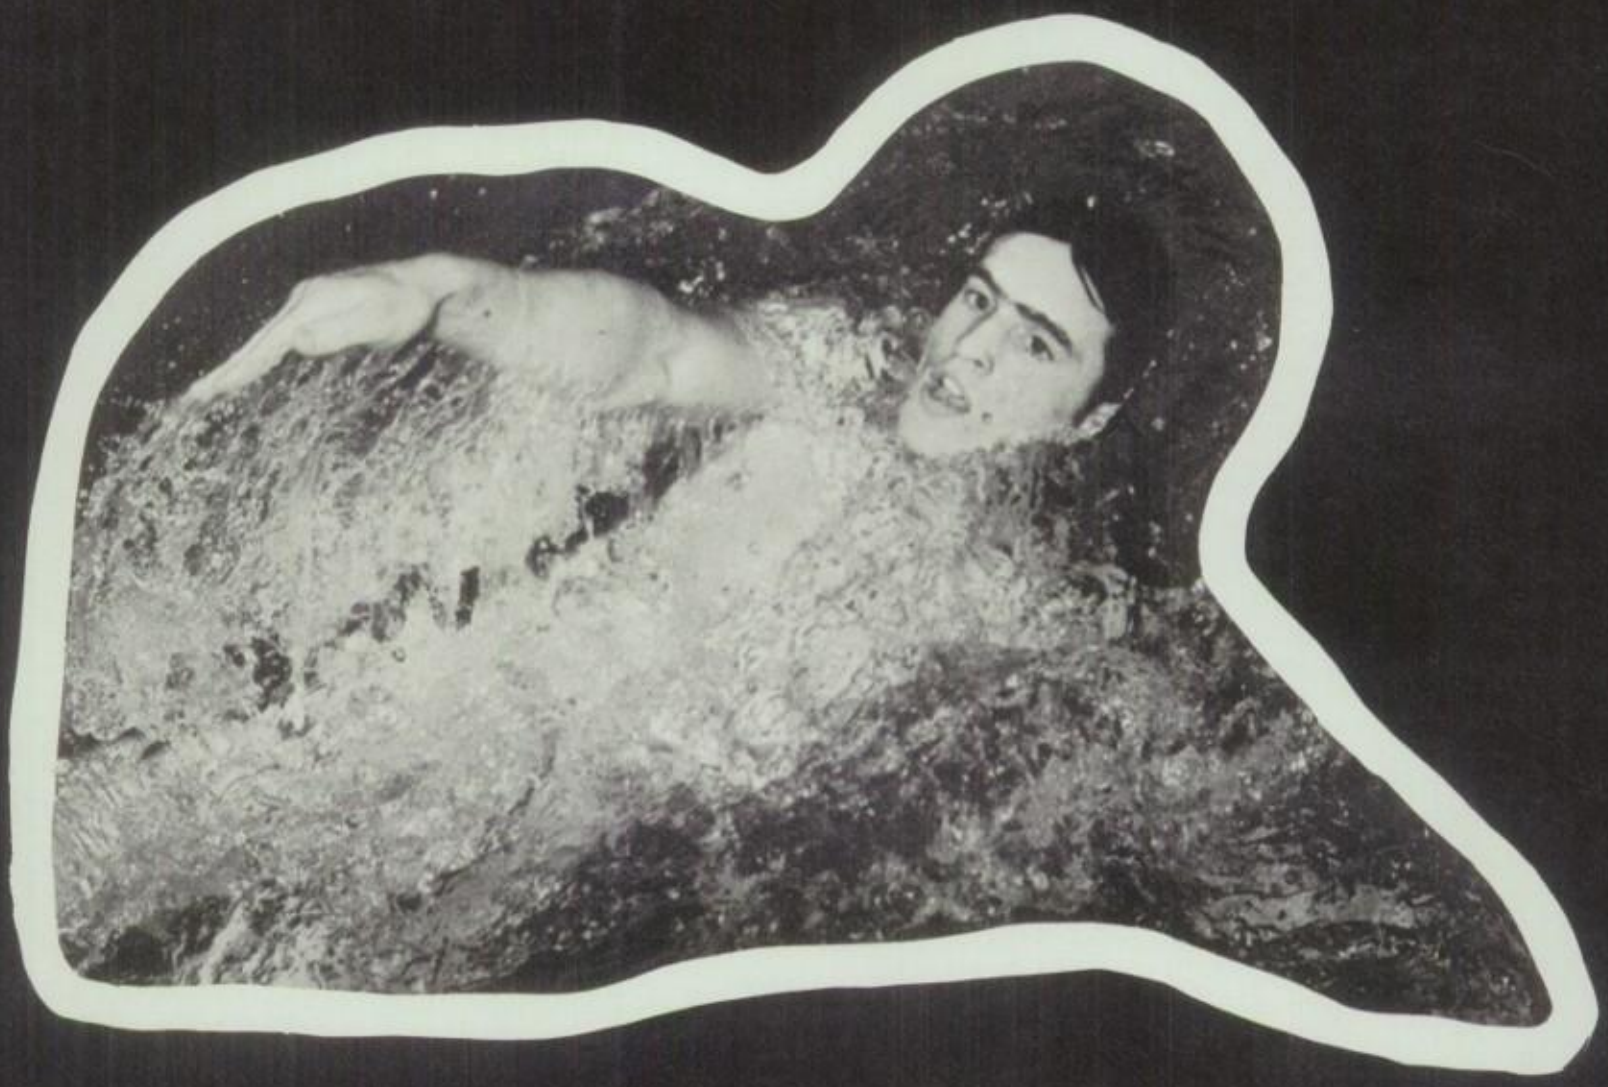
SWIMMING

TEAM SPIRIT, HARD WORK MAJOR FACTOR IN TEAM'S SUCCESS



Senior co-captain Fred Uttley, shown here swimming the backstroke, swam in the individual medley and freesyle events.

According to Coach Richard Kavanaugh, this year's swim team was one of the finest he has ever coached. The team finished in a tie for second place in Division A with a 10-4 record. Coach Kavanaugh said that with the exception of Bob Connell, East's All State diver, every victory was accomplished not with superstars, but only by a complete team effort. It's easy enough to see why the swimmers worked well as a team, for they are all good friends, and refer to themselves as a "close-knit family".

During the course of the year the Bolts accomplished several outstanding feats. Their biggest achievement was the victory over city rival Cranston West. This was the first victory over the defending champions the swimmers had registered in three years. True to form, only through a complete effort by every member of the team did the Bolts win, for though winning only three first places out of a possible eleven, the team had nine second place finishes and nine third place finishes.

One of the highlights of the season came from the freestyle relay team. Composed of John Thielsch, Jim Gaumond, Fred Uttley, and Jim Moran, they established a new team record. The top individual performer was Bob Connell. Bob remained undefeated in diving competition for the third straight year, including the Brown Interscholastic Meet and the State meet while setting new team, pool, and State records.

The team's super swimming throughout the year culminated with their last meet of the season, the New England's. There, the freestyle relay team of Thielsch, Gaumond, Uttley, and Moran set a new team record, besting their old mark by seven seconds. All four of these swimmers were elected to the first team All-State selections. Bob Connell finished an oustanding second in the New England competition, was elected as an All-Stater, and is also a candidate for All-American. The remainder of the team seemed to have saved the best for last, for every swimmer on the team broke his own personal record at the New England's.

Although losing eight seniors, Coach Kavanaugh foresees the future as very bright. The addition of Dave Mowry, who will be a sophomore next year, and is termed by the coach as a "superstar", will help the team considerably. If the Bolt displays the same spirit, drive, and teamwork they have exhibited all year long, don't be suprised to find them floating atop the league standings next year.

a. Senior Bob Connell exhibits style and excellent body control while diving. His skill earned him a state record in diving and made him a three time all stater.

b. Senior co-captain Helmut Thielsch, congratulates a Pawtucket West swimmer. Helmut swam in the individual medley, freestyle, and the breaststroke events.

b. Helmut Thielsch inspects his goggles so that he will be able to see clearly in the water during his race. Helmut was one of the mainstays of this year's team.

a. Fred Uttley takes off out of the blocks ahead of a Pawtucket West swimmer. Fred was one of the keys to the team's good season this year.
b. Junior Peter Mowry takes a breath of air while swimming the breaststroke. Peter's specialties this year were the 500m freestyle and the breaststroke.
c. The individual medley team: Jim Moran, Fred Uttley, Helmut Thielsch, and Jim Gaumond kick up a storm as they sing "How Dry I Am" at poolside.

BOLTS SHOW IMPROVEMENT: GAIN PLAYOFF BERTH

HOCKEY

Captain Jim Bucci, leading scorer for the Bolts, provided steady leadership this year and should continue to do so next year.

After last year's disappointing 5-17-1 season, the hockey team rebounded with a fine 10-9-3 record and a sixth place finish in the Met A division, thus earning a playoff berth. Coach Dick Ernst attributes this year's improvement to the team's "togetherness, spirit, and never-give-up attitude." The Bolts best effort of the season was an 8-6 victory over last year's state champions, LaSalle.

One factor accounting for the Bolts improved performance this year was the play of the captain Jim Bucci. An All-Stater as a sophomore, Jim had an even better junior season, setting a school record with 33 goals, and scoring 54 points, third highest in the state. He also proved tough in the clutch, registering four game winning goals. Other players who contributed were seniors Paul Mellor, who is considered by Ernst as the best goaltender in the state, Steve Blair, Kevin Smith, and junior Kenny Silva, who was the second leading scorer on the team, according to Ernst. These players were the key factors that propelled the Bolts into the playoffs. Unfortunately, the skaters were confronted by a powerful Hendricken team which handed East a 9-2 loss in the first game and, in the second game, the Bolts lost a heartbreaker, 5-4, in overtime.

Because the nucleus of this year's team consisted of juniors and sophomores, expect the Bolts to have an even better season next year. Besides having many experienced veterans returning, the Bolts will also be aided considerably by this year's J.V. team, which finished with a 13-3 record and won the Southern League Championship. Coach Ernst foresees a great season next year, and expects to be a serious contender for the state title.

a. After the Bolts lose a faceoff, goalie Paul Mellor prepares for a Woonsocket threat.
b. Sophomore forward Paul "Bomber" Thornton moves in for a backhand shot against the Clipper's goalie. Only a sophomore, Paul should return for two more seasons for the Bolts.
c. Paul Mellor makes a kick save against the Villa Novans. Most of the goaltending duties fell to Paul this year and his steady play helped keep East in contention.

a. Captain Jim Bucci angles in behind the Woonsocket defense for a shot on goal. Jim had another fine scoring year, leading the team with 33 goals.

b. Forward John Hogan chases down a LaSalle forward as defenseman Ray Mansolillo and goalie Paul Mellor brace for the coming onslaught.

ROW 1: B. Thornton, M. Arinello, R. Bucci, J. Ryan, P. Mellor, asst. capt., C. Hughes, D. Souza, R. Mansolillo, P. Gibbs; ROW 2: L. Faraone, asst. man., J. Hackett, man., K. Nichols, B. Squizzero, B. Bogosian, C. Holmberg, J. DiPaola, K. Silva, S. Blair, asst. capt., J. Bucci, capt., K. Smith, asst. capt., P. Poulos, J. Hogan, Coach Ernst.

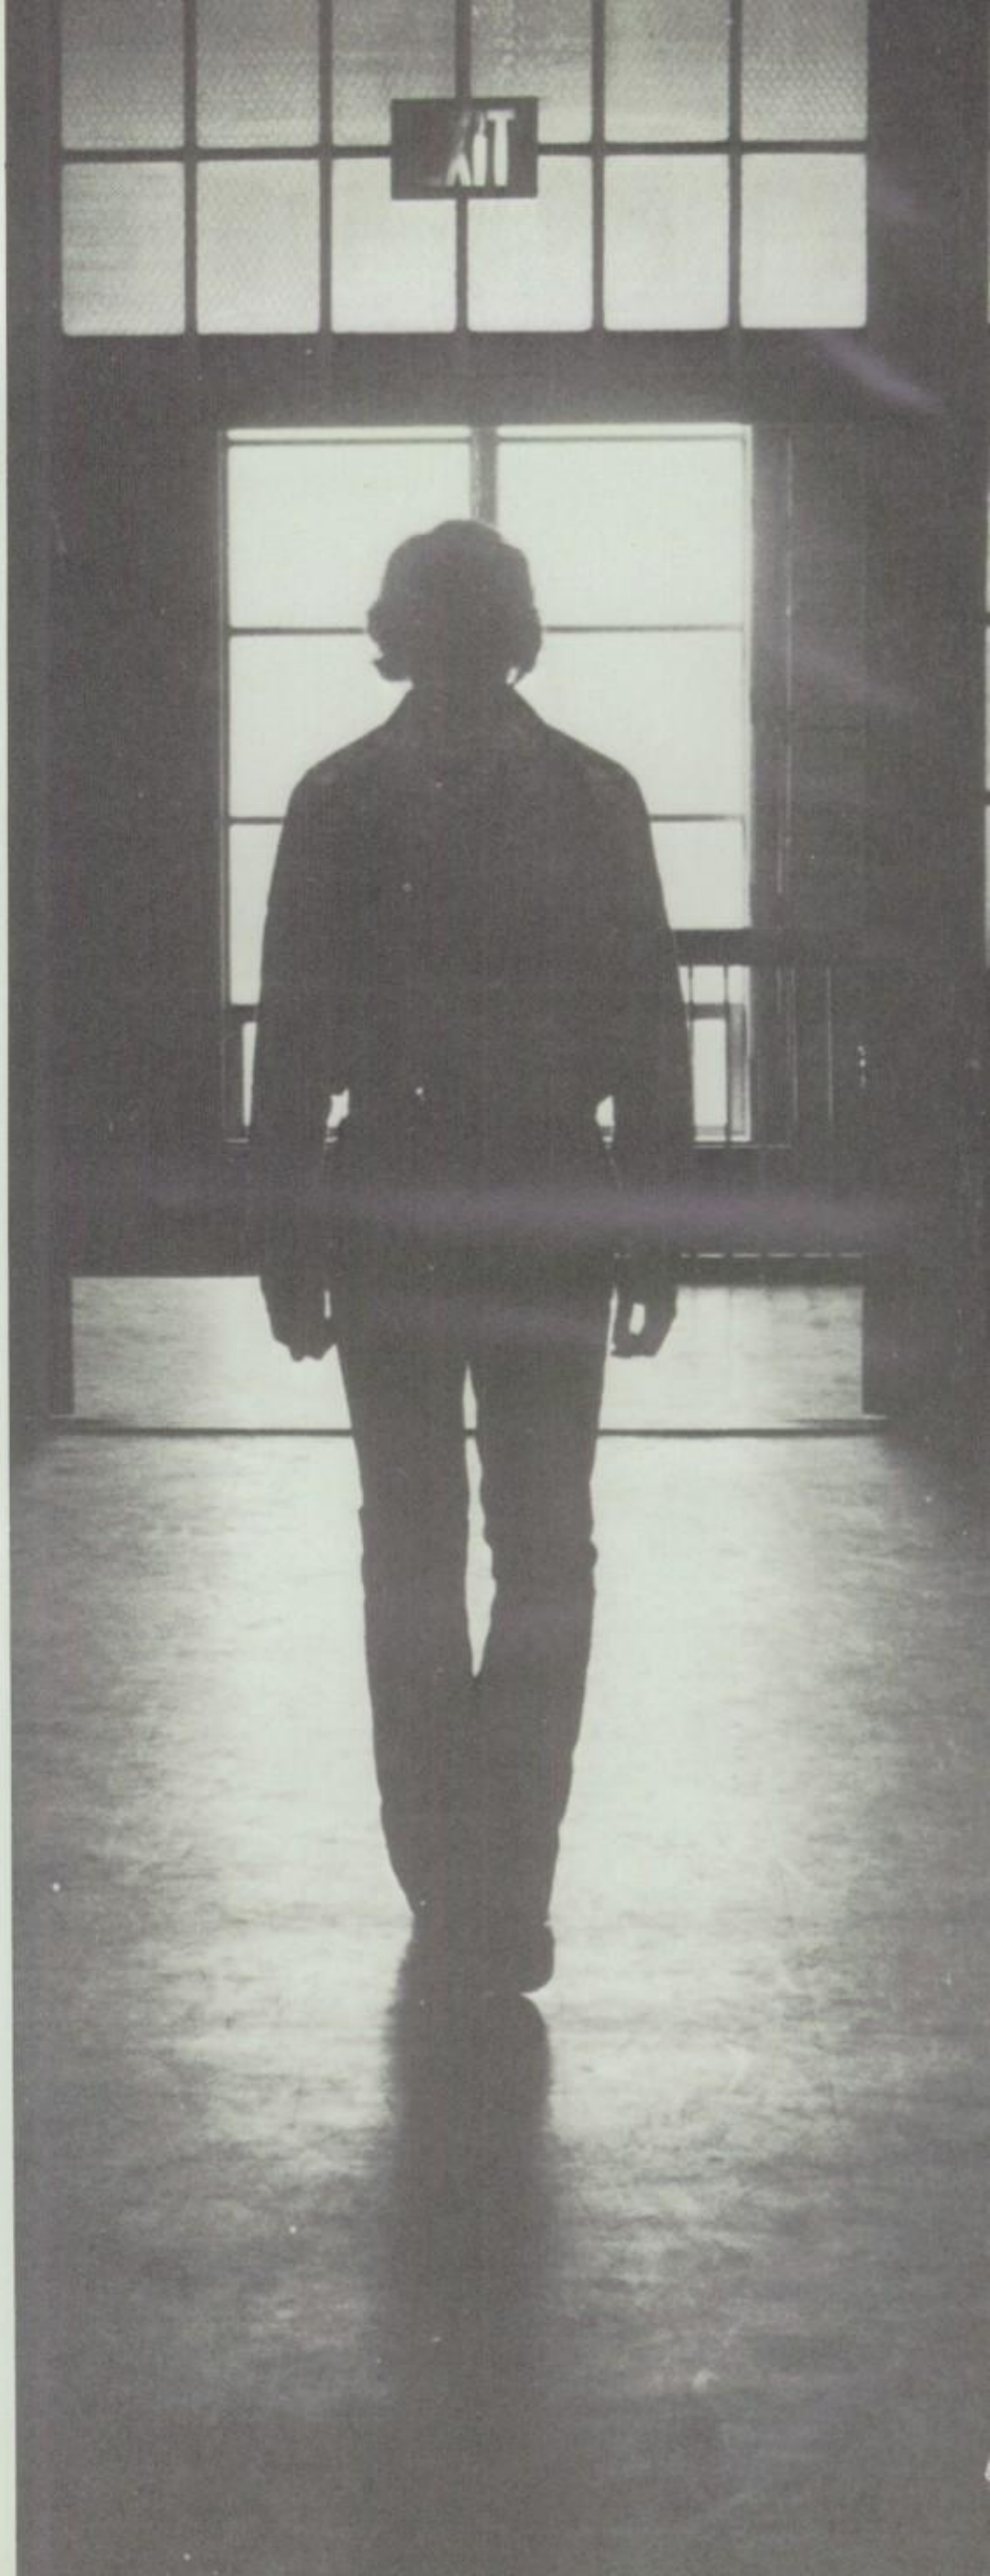
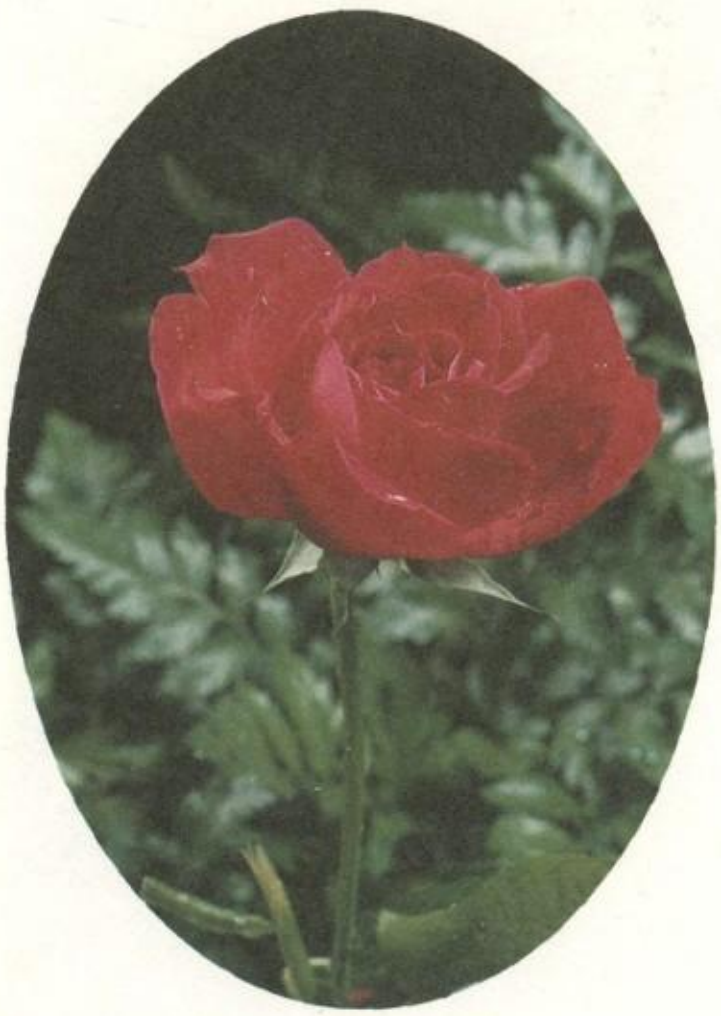
With one step through the entrance all personal problems are shed and the problems of the yearbook are taken on: deciding on a theme, what should not be included in the book, striving to be original; laughing, crying, loving, fighting, sweating and darn near bleeding to death to create the best yearbook ever because we know that it is the one true remembrance of our high school years.

Putting together a yearbook is a harrowing, yet rewarding experience. The staff's emotions seem to go through various phases. We start out with no idea of what's involved. Sure, there is some fear of not succeeding but we don't know exactly what we've let ourselves in for or we would be a lot more apprehensive. As we try to decide on a theme, our basic feeling is frustration. Each staff member has the perfect idea for a theme, the only problem is that none of them match. The end result is something like an explosion. There is also frustration in realizing we can't do everything we want to because of the tremendous cost. Next comes the pain of having one's creativity snickered at and rejected. Each of us felt the pain and even hate when our best ideas were shot down by the rest of the staff. But out of all the pain, frustration, and long hours is born the structure on which we will build the yearbook. And any resentment caused by hurt and rejection has to be forgotten quickly because it is time to build. We are past creativity and into productivity and during this hustle and bustle, the staff becomes a staff, no longer eight people, but one team. We can see, at this point that we are running a miniature business and that we all have to pull together for it to be a success. Before we begin working together each staffer has an idealized, pre-conceived image of what the yearbook should be. The book does not turn out as any one of those preconceived images and no one really minds. The yearbook is a composite of our many creative ideas, thus a better, more objective look at high school life.

We all made sacrifices to put the book together, such as giving up jobs, cutting down on other school activities, keeping later studying hours, and having precious little time to call one's own. But now, with the book before us, we see what we've created and every sacrifice seems tiny and insignificant and the reward, magnanimous.

I remember when I started High School
Alone and frightened; lost in the crowd
I had few ties and even fewer responsibilities
I was eager to succeed; terrified to fail.
I shuddered thinking of the goals I had set
And timidly took my first step toward the horizon.




I realize how much I've grown in these past three years
And I smile.
Now I am an individual, but I am no longer alone;
I have made friends and found love.
My responsibilities have grown and I have risen to meet their challenge.
I have succeeded and I have failed
And in learning to accept my failure
I have succeeded again.
I have achieved many of my goals and now replace them
With new more difficult ones.
Again, I shudder thinking of the challenge I face
Then, having gained strength to face any encounter,
I bravely take my first step toward the horizon.
